

My name is Pam Rousseau. I am the chairman of the board of Maine Right to Life and a post-abortive woman.

I wish I had had 24 hours to think about my abortion, and the truth before I made my decision to have an abortion. They told me my 11-week baby was a mass of tissue – LIE!!! I have held an over developed sonogram in my hand done by PPH of a 10 week baby – black.

My grandson's sonogram didn't look like that, but your child or grandchild didn't either.

How can it hurt to tell the truth?

We are all about making sure people know what is going to happen and protecting them. We require seatbelts, most places you can't smoke, and warning labels on everything. We even have a year to tell CMP we don't want a smart meter and complain.

My students are part of a research project with the National Science Foundation they have a "Informed Consent" (HOLD IT UP) and I had to get parental permission to have them play a game on how the moon was made!!!

YET, we don't do that in one of the most important decisions a woman can make. Heck, you don't walk in off the street and get a vasectomy in 1 hour or laser surgery.

How could NOT waiting make a difference? Why is an abortion the only procedure that falls outside the rules? If it is truly a good thing, then prove it by informed consent, 24-hour waiting period, showing and explaining, just as every other procedure you have done.

What is the abortion industry so afraid about?
